

AI inside Appoints New CRO and CTO, to Maximize Profit and Achieve a High-Added-Value AI Platform

Tokyo, March 31, 2022 – AI inside Inc., a provider of an AI platform, announced the appointment of Shintaro Tani as Chief Revenue Officer (CRO) and Hu Weiming as Chief Technology Officer (CTO) from April 1, 2022, as part of company efforts to improve and strengthen the management structure. By appointing both CRO and CTO, AI inside aims to develop and expand our high-added-value AI platform, and maximize profit by enhancing relationship with customers.

“Our mission is to bring AI to every being in the world and contribute to a richer future society. Thanks to the support of our many partners, we have delivered AI solutions to a great number of customers. Looking ahead, we aim to expand and utilize our partner ecosystem to lead corporate digital transformation via our AI platform and produce AI businesses to assist in corporate reform,” said Shintaro. “Working together with our customers, partners, and AI inside employees who create products with sincerity, we will make the utmost effort to provide even greater value and help solve problems worldwide via AI.”

“We aim to provide the top AI platform in the world and play a logistics role to bring AI to every being in the world. A high-added-value AI platform will find, gather, and deliver valuable things optimized, thereby becoming a social infrastructure that generates a new value,” said Weiming. “To solve the problems of the world and contribute to human evolution, we must further expand this AI platform via the participation of partners that share a common vision and purpose. While working together with our partners, we will focus on research, development, and technical collaboration to support our AI platform to become ever closer to an organization that can achieve these ideals.”
